GAFFNEY'S AUTO DRIVER ON TRIAL

Chauffeur Accused of Manslaughter for the Death of Mrs. Quinn.

RUN DOWN IN ROADWAY

Machine Sped Away When Assistance Might Have Saved Victim's Life.

Edward Goodwin, chauffeur for Alderman James E. Gaffney, who is charged with the manslaughter of Mrs. Quinn, was today brought to trial for manslaughter before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, today, charged with manslaughter. It is charged by District Attorney Young that Goodwin, driving Gaffney's automobile, ran down and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Quinn at Far Rockaway on Sept. 12. Mrs. Michael Kane, who was struck by the car at the same time, was badly injured.

The chief witness for the prosecution is Matthew Taylor, who was Alderman Gaffney's coachman. Taylor says that after the accident Goodwin brought the automobile to the Gaffney garage covered with blood and that he helped clear it. About three weeks after the accident he was accused of making a demand upon his employer for $100 for keeping quiet about the accident.

Trap Set for Coachman. Alderman Gaffney promptly notified the police and a trap was set for Taylor. He made an appointment to receive the $100, the money in marked bills was handed to him and he was arrested. Alderman Gaffney asserted in the police court that there was no foundation for Taylor's charge that Goodwin was responsible for the death of Mrs. Quinn, but the Queens County authorities took cognizance of the matter and secured the indictment of Goodwin on a charge of manslaughter.

Taylor was taken to Queens County and made a full statement. The Queens County prosecuting officers obtained from him the names of several witnesses, with the aid of whom they hope to prove their case.

Alderman Gaffney has retained Black, Otcott, Gruber & Boyne to defend his chauffeur. He has spent considerable money in a vain effort to run down the automobile that killed Mrs. Quinn, but the only trail he has struck leads to his own garage.

The accident aroused Queens County to a white heat of indignation. Mrs. Quinn, Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Quinn's husband were walking through Mott avenue about 2 o'clock in the evening. Suddenly a big, noiseless touring car containing three men shot out of a side street and struck the two women.

Might Have Saved Her Life. The chauffeur slowed down and half arose from his seat as though he would leave the car, but the others did not detain him, he put on full power again and disappeared in the darkness. Had he stopped and used his machine to take Mrs. Quinn to the hospital, he might have saved her life. There was a long delay in securing surgical attention for her, and the delay was fatal.

ACTRESS FAINTS IN A COURT ROOM

Nettie Bourne, Leading Woman in "A Marked Woman," Up on a Summons.

TROUBLE OVER A MUFF.

One Belonging to Mrs. Falk Disappeared—Miss Bourne's Case Dismissed by Court.

Nettie Bourne, leading woman in "A Marked Woman," was today summoned into Yorkville Court by Detective Sergeant William Judge, acting on the complaint of Mrs. Emma Falk, a clubwoman, living at No. 134 Lexington avenue. Mrs. Falk wanted to inquire into the disappearance of her $100 Persian lamb muff and collarette. The actress fainted in court. The case was dismissed by Magistrate Baker.

Mrs. Falk is a member of the Ladies' Sewing Circle, which meets every Tuesday afternoon at Tuxedo Hall, Fifth and Madison streets. In an adjoining room of the hall the melodrama "A Marked Woman" has been in rehearsal, preparatory to the premiere, which is expected to work wonders for the Chinese Reform Association in bringing the Dowager Empress into unpopularity.

Last Tuesday, Mrs. Falk says, she attended as usual and left her muff and collarette in a closet that is next to the rehearsal room. She said that the only person who saw her place them there was Miss Bourne, who is private life is Mrs. Arlington. When the sewing and small talk were over for the day Mrs. Falk went for her property, but the muff and collarette were missing. She notified Police Headquarters, and Inspector McLaughlin, deputy judge of the court.

On Friday the detective learned from the janitor of the hall that nobody had been in the building that afternoon but members of the sewing ladies, members of the theatrical company and Miss Bourne's husband, who is traffic manager of Larsson & Valley's show. Judge then went into the rehearsal hall and questioned the actress. She became so indignant, Judge says, that she was preparing to slap him viciously. When the villain of the play, one Rose, rushed into the plot with a drawn sword, Judge says Rose's interference with a naked sword prevented Miss Bourne from striking him. In court today counsel asked Mrs. Falk what charge she had to make against the defendant.

"I charge her with nothing," answered the clubwoman. "I am merely here to hold an inquiry into the disappearance of my property."

Prosecution protested and started to demand what crime had been committed, when Miss Bourne fainted and was caught by her husband and a court officer. The case was promptly dismissed.

B. R. T. FINDS NEW BLOCKADE EXCUSE. Outside the court Arlington made threats to prefer charges against Judge.

Sends Cars on Way to Bridge Through Street It Had Already Blocked With Ashes.

In addition to the customary mix-ups attendant upon slippery tracks, power shortage and general incompetence, the hopeless B. R. T. invented a new method of "tying up" this morning. Owing to the congestion in lower Fulton street, many cars to the bridge were sent through Adams street, where the genius of the management asserted itself. The flat car division of the road had previously dumped several hundred cartloads of clinders alongside and on top of the tracks for the convenience of the Crawford Contracting Company, the head and foot of which are B. R. T. directors. The incidental block lasted half an hour.

Leaped Sixty Feet to Death Because of a Bad Fall. GHAZORE CITY, Pa., Nov. 18.—Because he failed of re-election to the Board of Supervisors of Pocahtontas, a position he had held for years, Henry Waber yesterday climbed to the top of a sixty-foot wind mill and with a shriek leaped to the ground before the horrified gaze of his wife and three sons. It is supposed that Waber imagined his defeat was a reflection upon his character.

MINIA ROCKEFELLER DIES FROM CARRIAGE FALL

Aged Native of New Jersey Said to Have Been Related to John D. Rockefeller.

Minia Rockefeller, sixty-two, a veteran of the civil war, and said to be a member of the Rockefeller family of Huntington County, of which John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil head, is a descendant, was killed near Somerville, N. J., yesterday by falling from his carriage.

Suspicion of foul play caused County Physician Long to speed to the scene in an automobile, but he announced after an investigation that the aged man had probably fallen from his buggy while asleep. He was stunned by the fall and died from exposure.

A negro farmhand on the Steven E. Carretton estate discovered the body lying face down and found Rockefeller's horse browsing at the roadside. There were no evidences of a runaway and the light runaway was not damaged. Mrs. Rockefeller was notified and the body was removed to her home near Readington.

The motor engine, which was pulling two cars loaded with pick-iron, was not damaged. It was running at fifty miles an hour in the fog when it struck the freight. The tracks and third rail were torn up for some distance and the entire electric system was paralyzed for five hours.
